

LARRUA RUEDA

The name Larrua is a local place name; "Calle Larrua" is a street in our village that was full of wineries and underground cellars where families made wine for their own consumption. There is a saying that the name is due to immigration of Galicians who came to our town in the nineteenth century.

VINEYARD-CLIMATE-HARVEST

The grapes in this wine come from Verdejo vineyards planted in different areas of the Denomination of Origin Rueda (Pozaldez, La Seca and Serrada); all of them wire-trained. The soils are mostly of clay and stony. The other grape variety that we use for this wine is Viura, a secondary variety in Rueda but with a lot of history. The majority of these vineyards are old bush vines with stony soils, located in La Seca.

The climate is continental, with very cold winters with frost and sometimes snowfall; spring and autumn with mild temperatures and frequent rainfall; and very warm and dry summers with a great difference 20 degrees in temperature during day and night. This results in an ideal climate for our grapes to ripen.

Harvest is usually carried out in the middle of September when the grapes have reached their ideal ripening stage. We harvest by machine during night, taking advantage of the colder temperature in order to avoid oxidations. The varieties are harvested separately.

WINEMAKING PROCESS

Reception of the grapes in our winery; destemming and crushing of the grapes with a light pressing in order to extract the grape must. The different grape varieties are always vinified separately for elaboration. We carry out a static settling process with help from cold temperature. Further on, the fermentation process lasts for about 3 to 4 weeks. Afterwards, a racking operation, or transfer of the wine, is carried out to eliminate the thick lees, leaving only the fine lees in the wine. Finally, the clarification, stabilisation and a light filtration is done before the wine is bottled.
